Mobile phones, texting and sexting

Friday, 5 April, 13

Hello, welcome to the Safer Internet Day Breakout Presentation on "Mobile Phones, texting and sexting".
Going to talk about some of the risks that can come with your child and their cell-phone, particularly smartphones.
Children can't be simply kept away, it's part of modern development to be able to use one, for personal and business life.
Think of the information I'm going to give you as a road-test for a cell phone.

Do you know what they're actually capable of?

They've Got the Power

Your child now has access to more computing power than these guys.

For a little extra context, your child now has access to more computing power than these guys.

And they sent someone to the moon.

I haven't done anything that impressive myself, but i was excited i could use mine to order dominos online. Only took 5 minutes to do.

Told a friend how awesome that was, until they pointed out they used their cell to order dominos too, they called them and it only took 3 minutes.

What's in a Phone?

A cell-phone the size of your palm has access to:

These tools are great. It's fantastic what modern technology allows us to do now.

But think about how your child is allowed to interact with these tools around the home? (Home computer, game console, cameras)
Are the same rules being applied to their phone?

Before we get into the risks, let's see what you know about the way kids now communicate.

Proceed with "Leet" conversation, Ask if anyone understood any of it, Have a quick translation.

What's the Big Deal?

Friday, 5 April, 13

Does it concern you that you didn't understand all of that conversation?

What if your child was using it to convey messages to their friends?

What if they were using it to talk to a stranger?

The Joy of Text

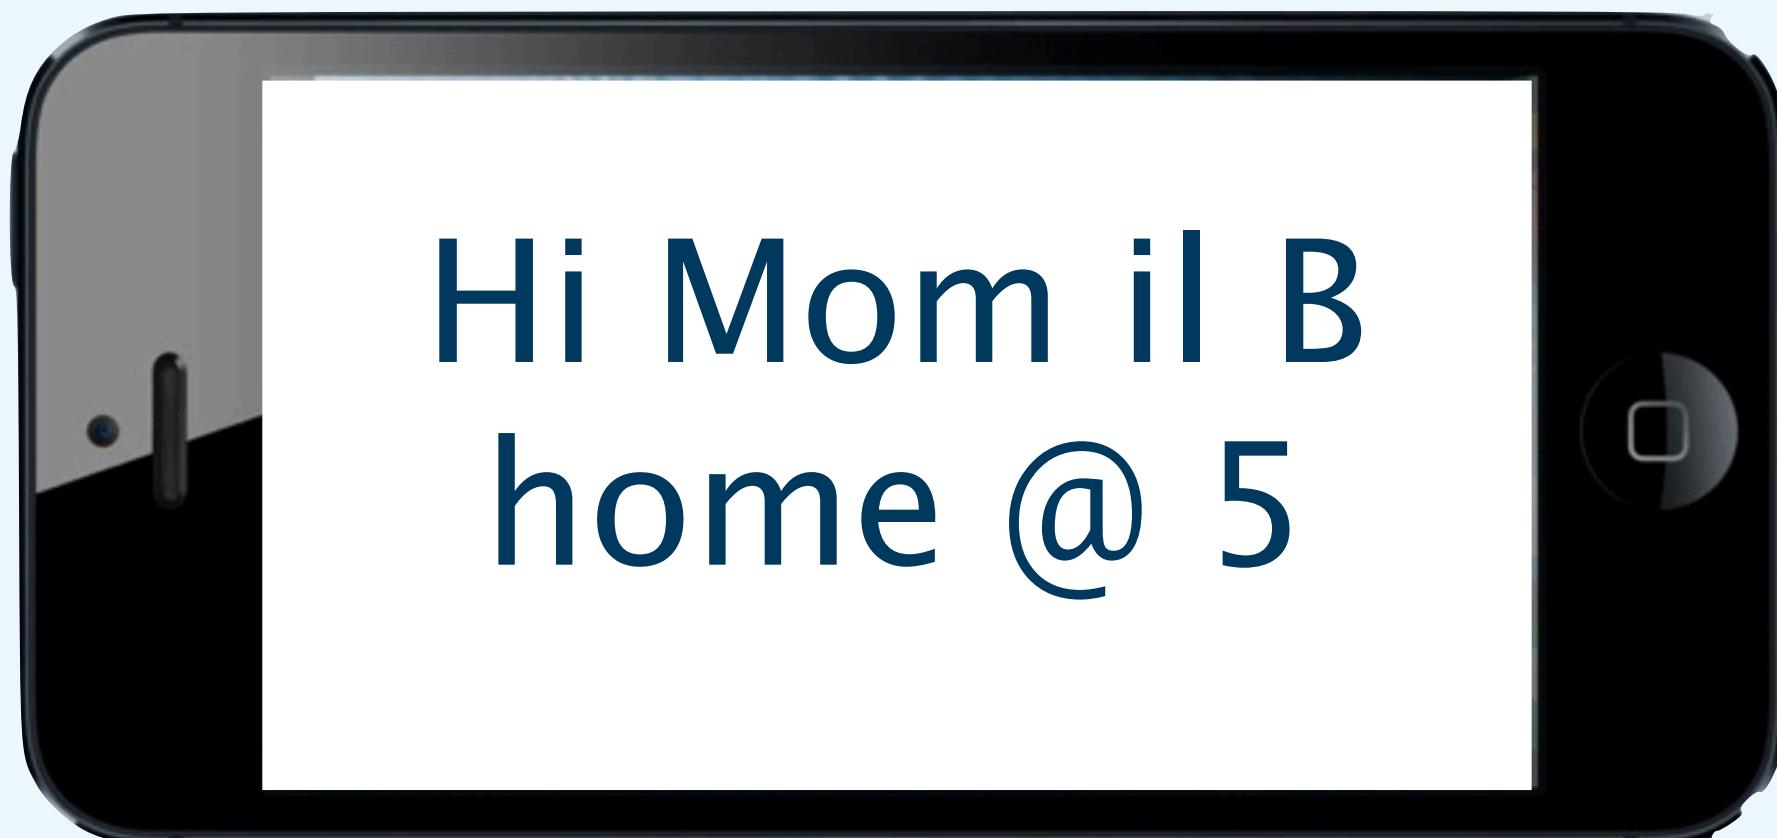

Friday, 5 April, 13

Texting doesn't need to be scary. Don't be worried if you're behind. Half the room probably isn't in regular text communication with their child. It can be a great tool to communicate with your child. You're probably already using it yourself. We have provided hand-outs to help you with some common phrases (hand-out common phrases and acronyms sheet)

Cyberbullying

Cell-phones have changed the way kids bully

Friday, 5 April, 13

Bullying has changed since you were kids, or even since i was a child

Now kids can be bullied through text and social media, or have physical bullying filmed and have it shared online or through cell phones

Cyber bullying is just as effective an in person bullying

There's also the added effect of anonymity, which can add to the stress to the victim

A child bullied by text can often have no refuge from their bullies.

Caught on Camera

Friday, 5 April, 13

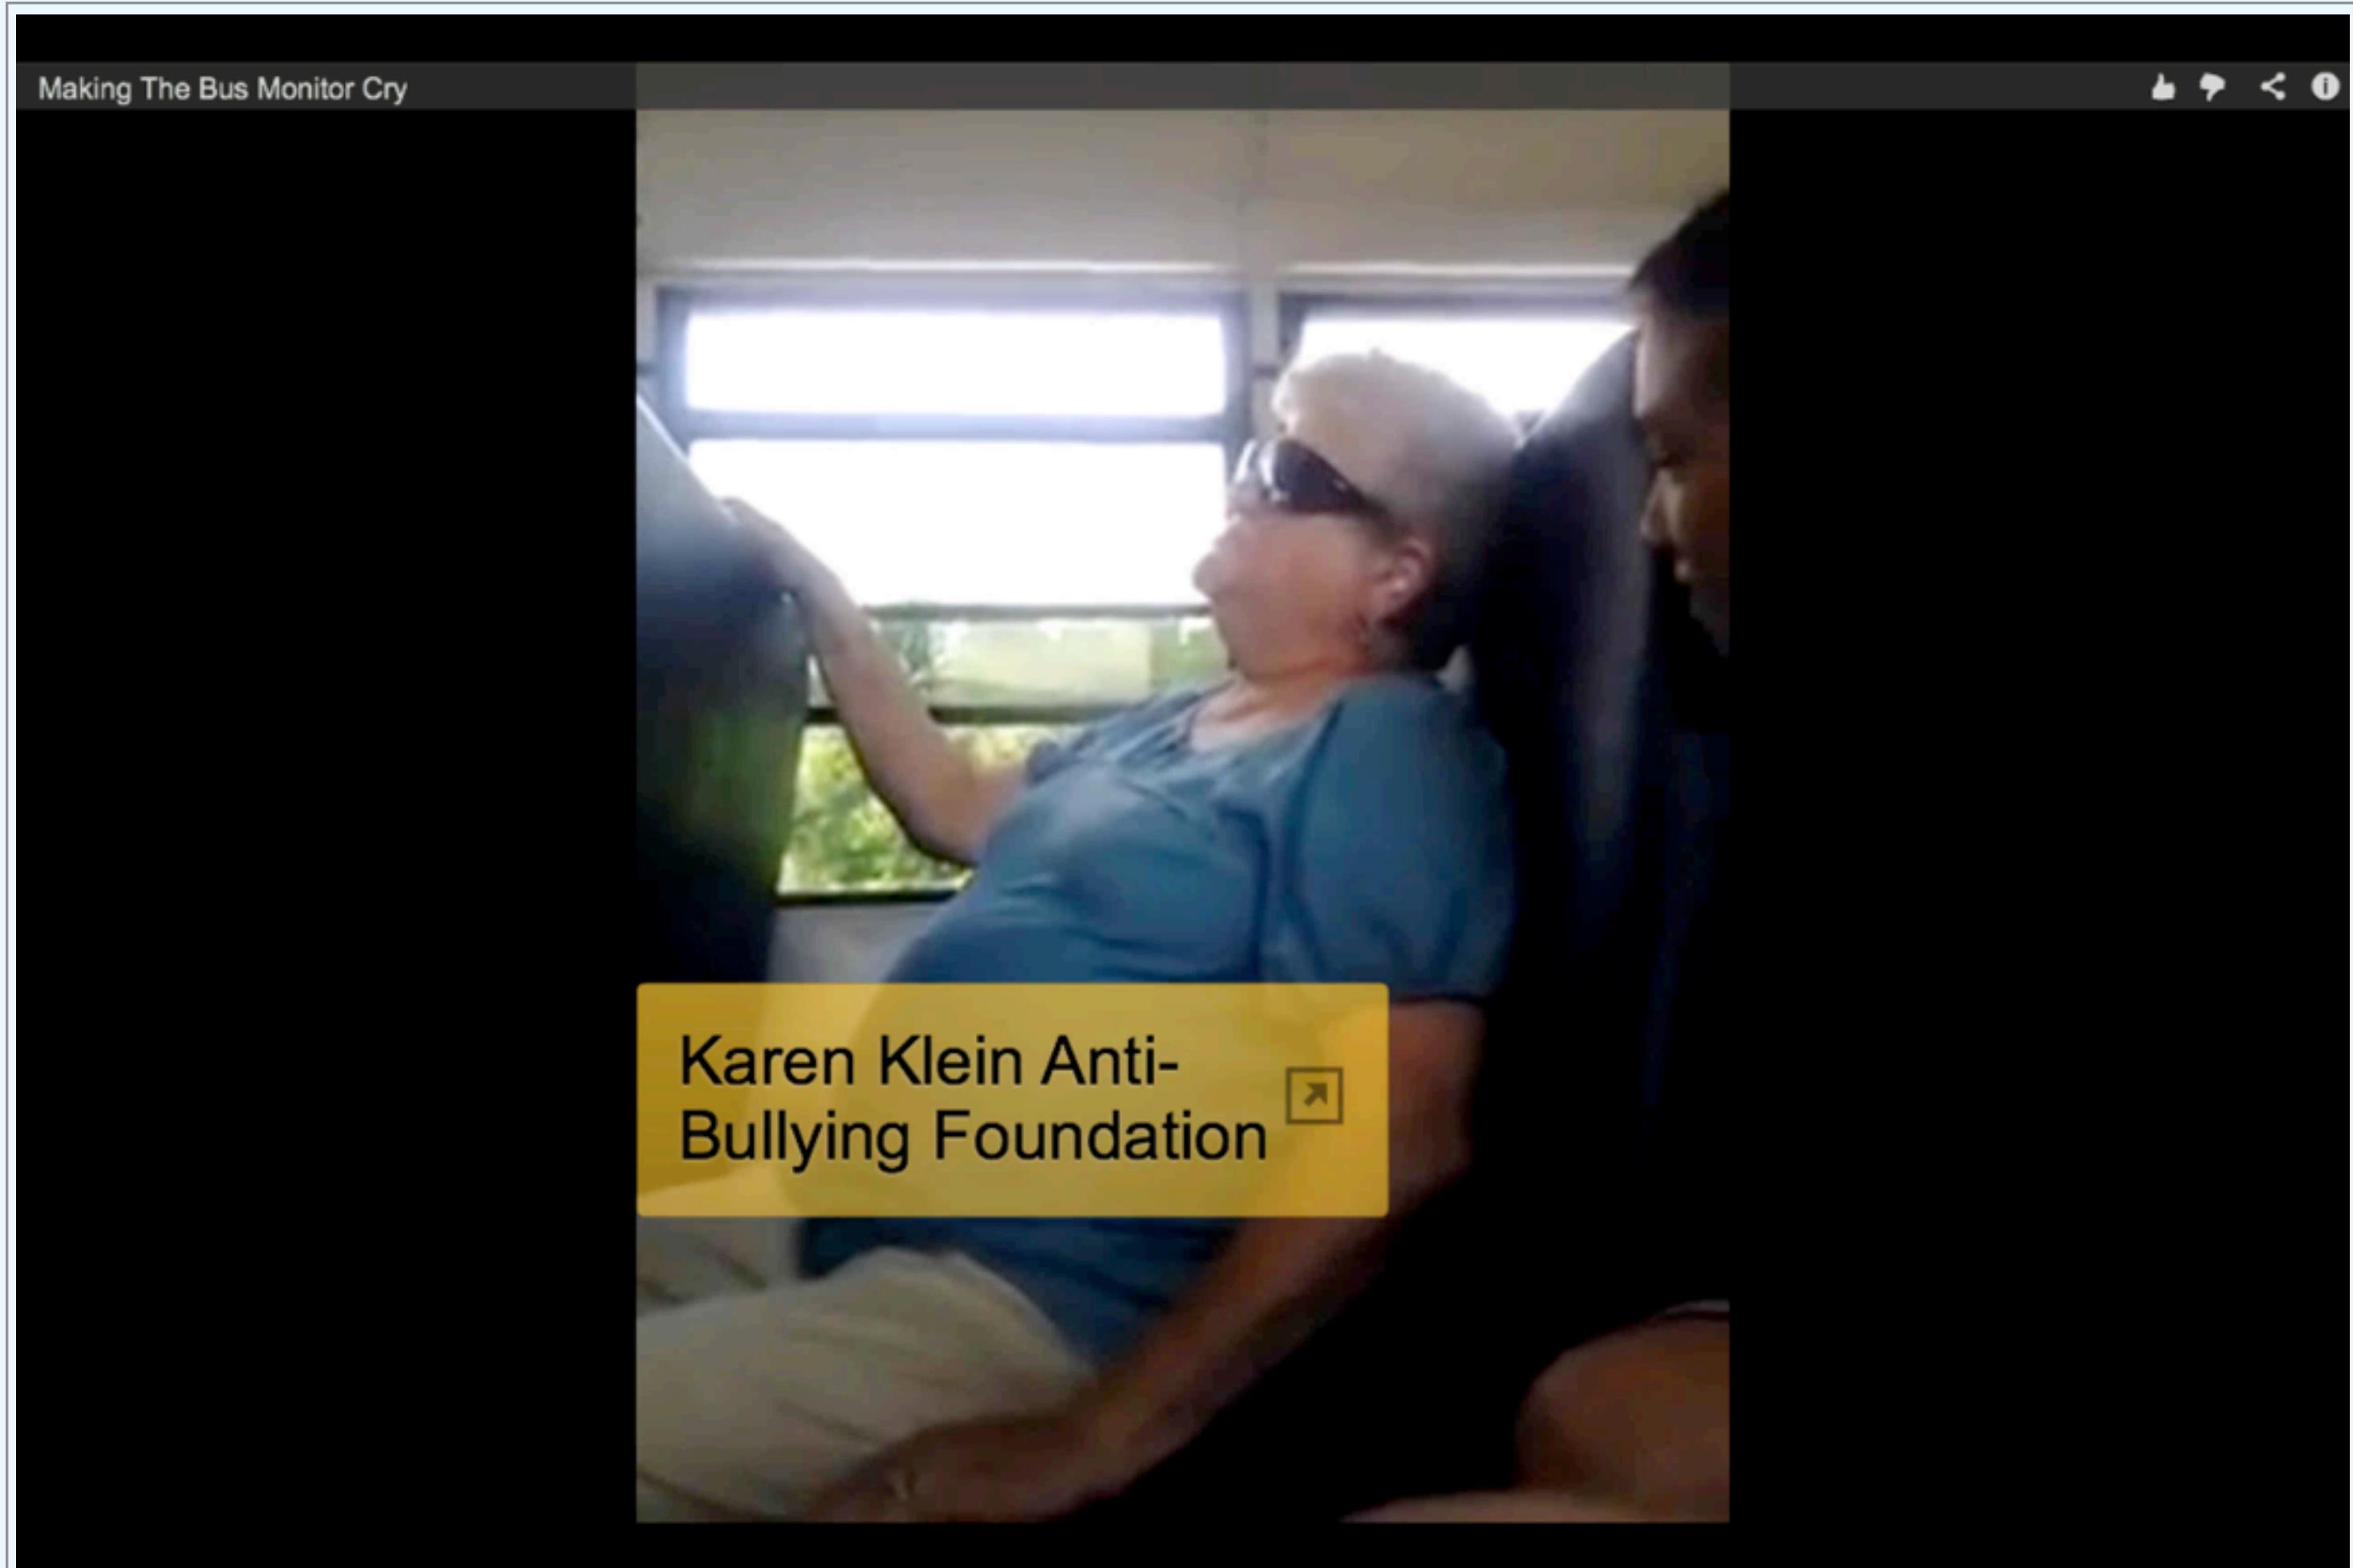

Children have access to cameras almost 24/7.

Video can help prolong the effects of bullying.

There have been some high profile examples of videos posted online. (click for video)

This is an example of children getting in trouble for causing the bullying

Family Friendly Apps

Friday, 5 April, 13

There are plenty of applications out there you and your child can enjoy together.

A great example is Puffle Launch. Another example is Tapulous

Disney has worked hard to produce suitable apps. Also reduce data collected by these apps too!

What's in an Image? (Geolocation)

Friday, 5 April, 13

Where was image 1 taken? Easy right? Now how about image 2? No idea?

Many images you post online will contain EXIF data

Most modern cameras and cell-phones apply meta-data or tags to images in this format. Using a reader, important data including time and location can be discovered.

People have been caught by the police many times by this.

Removing them can be complicated

The Rise Of Sexting

The very word "sexting" can elicit many responses.

Mitigate the Risks

Friday, 5 April, 13

All that i've talked about can be mitigated and the possible harm reduced.

A different kind of Cell-Phone contract!

Friday, 5 April, 13

What can be done to reduce possible harm, and increase responsible use of a cell-phone?

How do you start the conversation?

If they already have a cell-phone, ask them about it. What can it do? What games does it have. How do you text. Show interest in their device.

For new cell phones, there's "the contract"
